

Sino-American Pharmaceutical Professionals Association
Symposium on Regulatory Affairs

We are pleased to announce the SAPA Symposium on Regulatory Affairs, entitled “The Changing Regulatory and Compliance Landscape: Challenges and Opportunities” to be held on May 22, 2010, at Robert Wood Johnson Medical School at UMDNJ, Piscataway, NJ.

Highlight of the program:

- In the morning, several distinguished speakers from FDA and industry to share their views on the evolution of pharmaceutical regulations, and new challenges and opportunities pharmaceutical companies face with.
- In the PM Session I entitled “Managing Differences in Regulatory and Compliance Expectations”, a panel of experts with regulatory/compliance knowledge in the US and China to provide analyses of partnership and outsourcing strategies in the supply chain from China to the US, and explore potential roles SAPA and its members can play in bridging regulatory understanding of US and Chinese companies.
- In PM Session II entitled “Bridging Careers from Research Labs to the Regulatory Field”, speakers who have hands-on experience working in FDA or industry regulatory field will share their insights and views on what is like to be working in regulatory field, offer their personal experience on how they became regulatory professionals for those who aspire to move into the regulatory field.
- A dinner/social evening program sponsored by the municipal government of the city of Wujiang, Jiangsu Province, during which the mayor will introduce the city’s initiative to attract science and technology elites, and to encourage entrepreneurship.

The program offers an excellent educational opportunity to those who are interested in keeping pace with the changing regulatory environment in the US or seeking a better understanding of the RA profession.

We hope to see you at the symposium. Please register at www.sapaweb.org
